According to VHQ, robust growth from film and advertising service remain to be the key driver to increase revenue. This year, VHQ has been working on films which require heavy and high standard of visual effects, 3 of which were released this summer - “Once Upon a Time”, “Legend of the Naga Pearls” and “Guilty Mind”.

“Once Upon a Time” garnered box office revenue of more than RMB500 Million, coming in at number 2 in box office takings in China for August 2017. “Legend of the Naga Pearls” and “Guilty Mind” rank within the top 10 highest box office grossing films in China for August 2017. This makes VHQ the only visual effects house in China which has worked on 3 out of the top 10 movies this summer, another strong indication of VHQ’s strengthening market position in the industry.

VHQ has just launched a new investor website in the quest to enhance the disclosure of financial information and business activities. The website is available in both English and Chinese.
